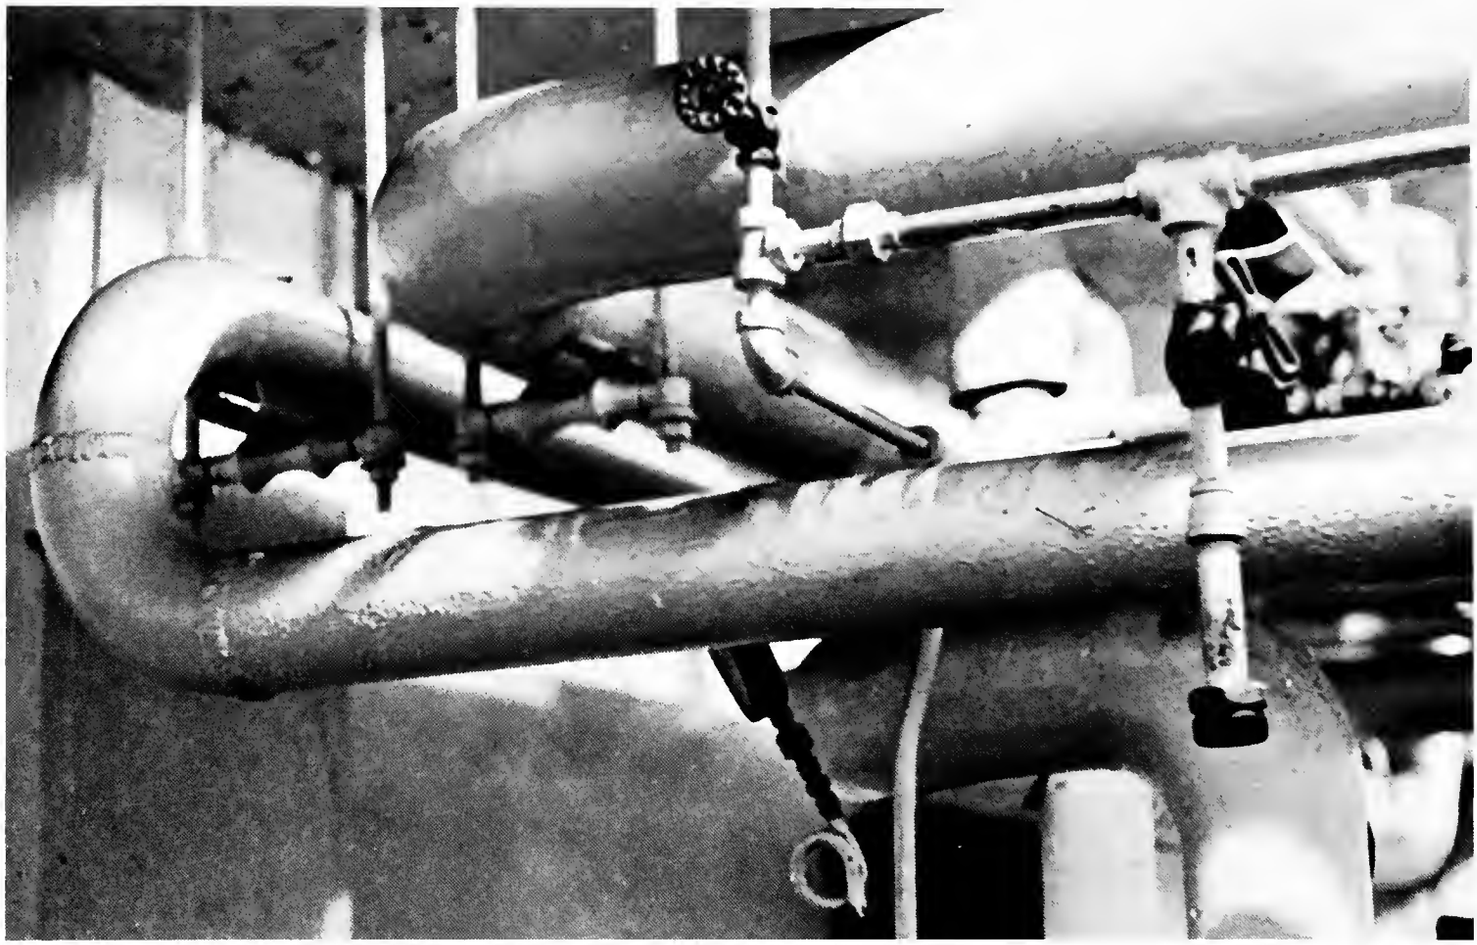
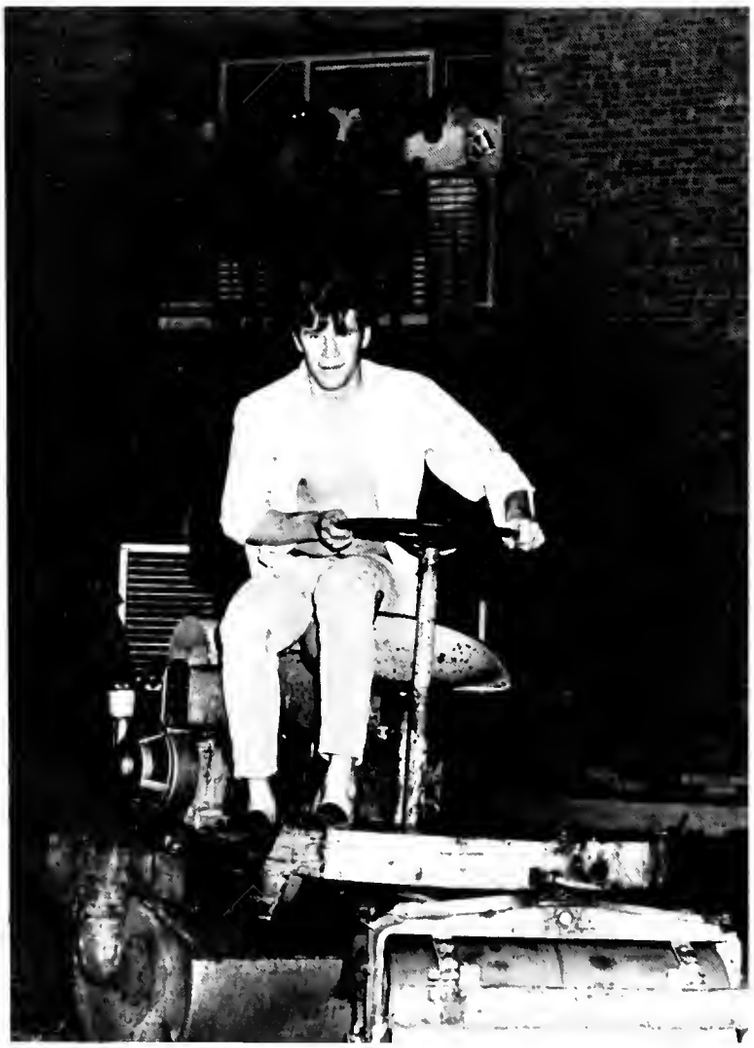
THE FORESTER 1968

LAKE FOREST COLLEGE LAKE FOREST, ILLINOIS



So I ask you to join me once again and march down the road to the future

The road that led to the Great Society.



A road on which we found ourselves confronted with the tragedy of Vietnam, the festering sickness of a black ghetto population created by a white racist society, and a country where assassination has become the norm and not the exception. Lake Forest students reacted with a new sense of commitment, a new social earnestness, no more did cries of apathy spring upon us.

Yes, at long last we were INVOLVED.

However deeply involved we were in the problems of the great society, we never forgot our real purpose, our avowed goals, which, coincidently, are concisely enumerated in the Lake Forest College Bulletin:

"Lake Forest College accepts as its primary purpose the cultivation of the mind in its ability to abstract, to judge, and to reason, so that the student may grow in understanding, insight and wisdom . . ."

The study of economics provides no royal road to future material success . . ."

"The liberal arts serve to free man from the bonds of ignorance and superstition . . ."

Indeed, we learned the art of leadership from our judicious teachers. And, though we graduate, their words ring true: once a Forester, always a Forester.

But things were not so fine as they might have been. There are drop-outs in every society, and ours had its share. These hedonists, products of insidious Spockian permissiveness, were all around us and, though they were detested and shunned, we Foresters accepted them in the best liberal tradition.

Finally, we were concerned with each other, with developing meaningful friendships; ties to last us through the years. How well do you remember your identity crisis? Your first proposition? And, ah yes, can you remember chez Harlan without giving out a little chuckle?

Indeed, we learned not only who we were, but how to get along with other human beings, how to react with sensitivity to the problems and desires of our neighbors, and even though there were certain "sick" people among us who felt the need for artificial stimulation, the vast majority of Foresters still cultivated one American ideal; through it all we learned the meaning and felt the excitement of good, clean fun.

PEACE MARCH

Lake Forest, Illinois is not the usual place for demonstrations of any nature. But on October 19 when thousands marched in Washington, New York, and San Francisco in protest of the War in Viet Nam some 150 LFC students walked peacefully around the Village Square. Carrying an array of protest signs, the students and faculty marched in silence while townspeople looked on curiously.

Comments ranged from "Just what the Commies wanted" and "Send someone to the college to talk to these people" to "Very nice, very good."

On the way back to campus the marchers were escorted by a Lake Forest policeman, who stated that he was simply there to protect the students.

CGA

For those who take student government seriously, The Community Government Association, under the vibrant if tranquil leadership of President Joel Stronberg, was a relative success. Relative, in the sense that 1967-68 CGA did about as much as any previous administration. It successfully demonstrated that the students do not like to associate themselves with long hairs and hippies who wish to destroy free speech by banning recruiters of that munificent and freedom loving institution — the U. S. Marine Corps. After preserving free speech in that fashion, CGA moved to revise it's constitution (again). Under the driving leadership of Vice President Nick Bauman, the revolutionary new blue prints for progress never got to the floor of that distinguished body of legislators. The only real winner in CGA this year was the perennial champion, Sturgis, whose famed Rules of Order caused enough chaos to whet the tempers of all.

DEATH OF A SALESMAN

"Nobody dast blame this man. You don't understand: Willy was a salesman. And for a salesman, there is no rock bottom to life. He don't put a bolt to a nut, he don't tell you the law or give you medicine. He's a man out there in the blue, riding on a smile and a shoeshine. And when they start not smiling back — that's an earthquake. And then you get yourself a couple of spots on your hat, and you're finished. Nobody dast blame this man. A salesman is got to dream, boy. It comes with the territory."

SOUL WEEK
JANUARY 24-28

Eleo Pomare

As I heard the panel discussion "Why Be Black?" with Paule Marshall, Vincent Harding, Ronald Fair, Lerone Bennett, and Sterling Stuckey; I knew right away that Soul Week '68 was not going to be another ordinary conference — IT WAS NOT! The panel set the stage for the conference: the stage was to be Lake Forest College but the performers were to be black. What followed the panel discussion was a series of representatives from the field of fine arts who demonstrated how the black perspective could be woven into the arts medium. It was not only enjoyable to listen to the "down home" flavor and idioms of the poetry read by Ossie Davis and Ruby Dee, but also inspiring and captivating in a way that boiled down to "pride in Soul."

The main purpose of Soul Week '68 was to present to the "student body and faculty of Lake Forest College, and to members of the North Shore-at-large, a program, through the medium of the fine arts, surveying the various aspects of the Afro-American Culture." It was an attempt by black Lake Forest students, with the help of their non-black fellow students, to promote an awareness and understanding of the black in American Culture on a level less superficial than that which might have been engendered by a conference centered around political debates and the like. As a further and, perhaps more distant, end, it was the hope of blacks at Lake Forest that, "through this awareness and understanding, better relations between all members of American society (specifically the college community) . . ." would be perpetuated.

LAKE
FOREST

TUTORIAL PROJECT

Since 1963 Lake Forest students have been commuting once a week to schools and settlement houses in Waukegan and Chicago to provide tutoring services for underprivileged children. Since its birth the members of the tutorial project have become increasingly aware of the wide cultural gap that separates them from the blacks and Latin Americans of the inner city. This year, in an attempt to bridge this gap by better understading its nature, students arranged conferences and discussions with social workers and teachers from the ghetto areas and with black students from the Lake Forest campus. It was clearly obvious, however, that this was only a preliminary step. With the encouragement of Dr. Arthur Zilversmit the project members formed a course to be included in the 1968-69 curriculum which would deal with specific educational problems in urban America. The course, covering such topics as teaching the disadvantaged, history of the black ghetto, and community resources, will be a supplement to the first-hand tutoring experience. Next year, with more knowledgeable members, the tutorial project should make a greater contribution to the campus and to the surrounding communities.

Generation Gap: "Division Street, LFC"

The Communication Gap

by Steve Logowitz

This week at least two separate groups of interested students have assembled for the purpose of altering scheduled Generation Gap activities. Specifically, criticism has been leveled at the Administration's preplanning of events, allegedly executed with a minimum of consultation and communication with the student body. Further discord has arisen from what has been termed a "token participation" of Lake Forest students within the framework of the conference.

Sporadic but campus wide antagonism for scheduled questions of panel discussions has been vented toward their "negative character" and their inapplicability for this generation.

The Development Office of the Lake Forest College administration recently issued its own schedule of speakers and events for a spring converence entitled "Between the Generations: The Confidence Gap," after many months of patient planning. The list of invited panelists for the three day (April 24-26) conference is an impressive one, offering 28 outside experts, representing both generations, and three Lake Forest College students (denoted in one official publication by an asterisk). Of the 28, perhaps no more than seven of these are actually under thirty years of age. None are undergraduate students.

The Student Gap

Those administration personnel directly involved with the conference repeatedly emphasized that past consultations with student body members had indeed taken place.

In October 1967, three students including the President of CGA and the head of campus cultural committee did in fact assemble to discuss conference plans with college officials. These students then aired their opinions concerning a preplanned listing of conference speakers, activities, and questions devised by an administration committee.

Students registered criticisms against the nature of the suggested questions; but the question of student involvement received minimal attention. "It sounded fine to us," said one. "We just assumed students would be involved."

Two subsequent meetings followed, with the same students summoned in advisory capacities. It was noted, however, that by this time, many of the original conference ideas had already taken form. The question of student participation reappeared, and conference committee-men agreed to rectify the situation.

Attempts Made

One week ago, opportunities for students to usher, lead tours, and provide transportation were presented to the student body.

The Credibility Gap

Earlier this week, interested students consulted with Mrs. Ruth Winter of the Cultural Office and President Cole. A list of four propositions was submitted by the group. These being: 1.) time allowance for informal discussion with conference participants 2.) organized classroom seminars headed by the speakers 3.) the inclusion of students in the scheduled dinner plans of these speakers and 4.) greater allowance for actual panel discussion by mean of curtailing speeches.

On Tuesday Administration officials issued a listing of all conference participants accompanied by allotted time of their availability "for informal discussion in Reid." The second request for seminars was flatly denied by President Cole.

It was further explained that most speakers would be the guests of families within the Lake Forest community. While these families have received suggested lists of students, only a few had actually issued invitations by Stentor press time.

Cole noted that panel speeches are expected not to exceed seven minutes each.

Radicals in Hiding

To date, small student groups have begun to align themselves against the administration with hopes of a conference boycott. As most have been operating in relative secrecy, factual information has been virtually non-existent. To be sure, however, there presently exists a growing resentment against very real issues, some of which ironically appear among the conference questions.

. . And The Rift Widens

A separate faction has apparently risen in response to a very different series of inequities. Convening as personally aroused individuals rather than as a specific group, this interested party has sought to act in conjunction with a national protest against racism and the Vietnam war.

The coincidental nature of the Generation Gap Conference was deemed "unfortunate" by one junior woman, but the series of events might prove advantageous to students desirous of dramatizing their dissatisfactions. This is not to discount the fact that many of these same students profess little affection for the conference in its entirety, she added.

Although no definite plans have as yet been formulated, hopes run high that a significant "teach-in" be slated during the first day of the conference.

Nepotism Clause Forces Quitting

Mrs. Ruth Sproat, college registrar, has submitted her resignation and Miss Ruth Ann Bopp has been appointed in her place.

The resignation is effective in June.

Mrs. Sproat resigned in order to comply with an unwritten policy prohibiting a husband and wife from both being employed by the college full time on a continuous basis. Mrs. Sproat married Professor John Sproat, a tenured professor in the history department, last year.

The Sproats, though questioning the wisdom of the policy, expected that Mrs. Sproat would have to resign at some point, according to Dr. Sproat.

President Cole permitted Mrs. Sproat to maintain her position through next June, according to the President.

Last spring Mrs. Sproat was also elected secretary of the National Association of Registrars and College Admission Directors. This post entails a three year term. The Sproats were under the impression that Dean Dunn would permit Mrs. Sproat to fill two years of that term. In this case, she would stay employed until June, '69.

MEET THE BROTHERS

It is time for the fraternities and sororities of Lake Forest College to be dissolved. The administration has too long tolerated the existence of these pernicious organizations in the midst of what it professes to be an institution of learning and personal development. This is a call to rouse the citizens of the academic community to a realization of their educational responsibilities.

The fraternity is a selfish, hedonistic, divisive, discriminatory and anti-scholastic collection of people. It serves no useful purpose in itself, but derives its sustenance through a parasitic relationship that drains the college of much energy, time, talent and devotion. The particular mis-deeds of fraternities that plague campus life each year are not isolated incidents, but rather the products of a life-style, a Weltanschauung, (affectionately referred to as "fart it off") that is antithetical in essence to the expressed goals of any institution of higher learning. When students are discriminated against, when needed quiet hours are interrupted by round after round of weekend beer-blasts, when a general attitude of self-indulgence and anti-intellectualism is fostered, and sanctioned, implicitly or explicitly by the campus as a whole, what is indicated is a general trend, a consistently harmful pattern of group behavior which demands to be brought to an immediate halt, for the inevitable result of such behavior is that everyone suffers, those who participate and those who merely breathe in the general climate of mental slackening and decay.

CGA DRIBBLE

We are appalled by the tremendous amount of dribble written on these pages before you by next year's CGA candidates. They are included in this issue because we feel it only fair that the entire student body be exposed to their views; but if you do not have a great deal of time, then do not even bother to waste it on reading these speeches. What you will find, if you do read them, are only new ideas for changing the structure of the CGA delegate system, and ways to increase student interest and concern in student government.

We believe that this year's candidates are touched with a bit of paranoia. Why should they be so unhappy if the whole campus does not share their enthusiasm about constitutional revision, voting procedures, and the election of secretary and treasurer? The candidates, if they had any political sense, should realize that these subjects are of no interest to Lake Forest students today. And why should they be?

It is for the above reasons that the Stentor cannot support any of the candidates for next year's offices. What CGA needs is someone with a creative mind — someone who can turn Lake Forest's student government from an organization bogged down in parliamentary procedures to one which transcends the normal duties of ruling bodies. In other words the CGA of today is obsolete. It no longer serves a meaningful function to the majority of students on this campus. Nevertheless, most of us believe that a student government should be a part of our college careers. It does, after all, serve some necessary, although too often mundane functions. And it can do meaningful things, if the leaders would only think a little bit.

We, therefore, suggest that the student body reject this paltry slate of candidates. If you decide to vote at all, then "write-in" a candidate, a person whom you can be sure will not spend all of next year re-arranging votes, constitutions and housing boards.

LETTERS To The Editor

Honkie Holiday

To The Editor:

Whitey, you'll never learn. I once had hope that possibly this future generation would have the awareness and insight to realize the sad course this society is taking. I felt that if there was anything to awaken the sleeping dogs that inhabit this country, it would be the tragic events of the past weekend. But Whitey, you have become so involved in the somnambulism in which you live your life that I have given up all hope for you, and the sick society you perpetuate.

I can hear you now, "What's that boy talking about?" Well, let me hip you! Classes were called off for Tuesday in memoriam to the late, great Dr. Martin Luther King. This is a time when all people should be re-evaluating their self, their values, and their society. Black people have been doing this since that tragic Thursday evening. Monday afternoon, I talked to a few, and they were few, concerned whites who had done a little thinking themselves.

But, that same night all my hope for this society died. The future leaders, the white college students of today, spent Monday in celebration. South Campus was a collage of drunken cheers for fireworks and buffoonery. Time that should have been spent in re-evaluation on the part of all peoples, was better utilized by the whites on this campus for participation in the barbaric rites and ceremonies they call fun.

WHITEY, I DON'T KNOW WHAT'S ON YOUR MIND, BUT I WON'T BE SURPRISED IF THE NEXT THING IS A BULLET FROM A BLACK GUN.—

Hungry Thanksgiving

Dear Students,

Relief from Szabo food is in sight! Yes, in a short time you won't have to suffer through daily doses of jello and chicken because during the Thanksgiving break you won't be fed at all.

Our Administration reasons that the Thanksgiving break is a "vacation" for all of us, and since students are not fed during other vacations, then we should not be fed during Thanksgiving (in fact, the last meal served will be lunch on Wednesday, November 22 and the next meal will be dinner on Sunday, November 26).

This leads me to wonder that if Thanksgiving is a true vacation, then to be consistent the Administration should charge all students staying on campus the usual $2 a day levied against all students remaining on campus during Christmas and Easter vacations. But since there is no planned room charge, then Thanksgiving is not a true "vacation" and the action planned in reard to meals is uncalled for.

We should also note that if each student is expected to go home during Thanksgiving, then an additional travel allowance should be given to stu-

Ding Dong Dumont Goes Tooth & Nail Into N.H. Primary

They laughed when "Cap'n Don" sought in vain to debate now-Senator Charles Percy about the state of world affairs. They laughed when that same Good Humor man pledged his Republimerican energies toward the goal of President of the United States. But when Lake Forest's own Don Dumont appeared at the New Hampshire Presidential primary this week to declare "less taxes and more pay," some of that laughter subsided. Dumont legally stated his intentions as a Presidential candidate with forty others, declaring "The only thing false about us is my teeth."

Who knows, they may still be laughing.

Bitching Turns To Bulling

by Amanda Harris

Last Thursday's "Bitch In" should rightfully have been called a "Bull Out," for it was the bull that the Administration handed out so freely, not the bitching of the students, that made the occasion memorable.

The issues raised before President Cole, Dean Hoogesteger and Dean Necker were those that one expected to hear: parietals, freshman women's keys, Tusitala censorship.

Hoogesteger and Cole, bypassing Necker, monopolized the floor and both gave equally evasive answers to the questions. When asked about the forced resignation of Mrs. Sproat because of the nepotism policy, Cole shrugged and said, "Ah, well, you win some and you lose some." He qualified this not-so-brilliant remark by the statement. "No one is indispensable."

Cole's stand on morality is that it should not be legislated. That is, not unless it is convenient. Parietals and freshman women's hours safeguard sexual morality. After all, as Hoogesteger so knowledgeably pointed out, women are "the prey of men." Also, parents must be appeased and parents pay the bills.

The student body was also greatly reassured by Cole's statement that the college does not exist solely for the benefit of our neighbors, the residents of Lake Forest. If it were, the student body would not contain any of "the extremely questionable characters from the Eastern seaboard."

After an hour and a half of Cole's wisdom, no one could help but feel that Lake Forest College is in good hands. President Cole did not feel that the censored Tusitala cover was obscene; he favors the abolition of the language comp, and he foresees open dorms for women. After all, just the fact that he is partially responsible for changing women's hours from 8:30 p.m. in 1960 is strong evidence of Cole's powerful leadership.

One must sympathize with Cole's position, however, and agree with his closing comment, "Even being God ain't no bed of roses." How tragic.

dents on scholarships since travel allowances are allocated for other vacations.

Regardless of whether or not Thanksgiving constitutes a true vacation, it would be advisable for Lake Forest students to start stocking up a food supply for Thanksgiving. Also, I would recommend that all those students who had planned to work on papers in the library during this "holiday" had better make other plans because the library is tentatively closed for the Thanksgiving break.

• Brothers

But the issue goes far deeper than noisy libraries and boring classes. Fraternities divide the student body itself up into arbitrary cliques that accentuate socio-economic disparities and exacerbate the hostilities and conflicts which result. While on the one hand each Greek community separates itself from its "neighbors," a deeper alienating fissure arises between those who pledge and those who choose to remain independent. It is through this institutionalization of factualism that the students are prepared for more serious segregational practices on a larger scale in later life, for religions that abhor other faiths, for nationalism and its accompanying wars, indeed for every form of ethno and egocentrism which lies at the heart of human prejudice, regional, racial, and otherwise. It is this spirit of clannishness, of needless antagonism, which is so very constitutive of fraternity life.

Yet for all the separation which the fraternity engenders, there is not a scrap of individuality. The unique person, the genuine non-conformist, is not appreciated in fraternity circles. Instead, the student loses his own self to the degree to which he is assimilated by group standards, conventions, and modes of "thought." It is true there are exceptions — there are those rare people who can maintain some kind of authentic existence as individuals while at the same time participating in fraternal affairs. But this is individuality in spite of the fraternity, not because of it.

There are many colleges that function quite well without fraternities. These institutions are now freed for better things. Let us hope that the student body, faculty and administration of Lake Forest College will finally gather up the courage to do away with this obvious blight on the college landscape. Delay will only result in a further retardation of academic and cultural growth, and in further prejudice and narrowmindedness, under the guise of "good clean fun."

Administration Censors Art

"Tusitala" Cover Judged As Obscene

The cover of the 1968 Winter issue of Tusitala, the campus literary magazine has been censored by the Administration.

The cover displaying a nude female exposing her pubic hair was felt to be of questionable taste. Junior Haakon Chevalier made the drawing.

Censorship action was taken when the college printer, William G. Breining decided that the drawing lacked good moral judgement. The drawing was then relayed to President Cole who did not oppose the printer's decision.

On Wednesday the Student-Faculty Life Committee met to discuss the issue. The committee decided that a group of three faculty, three students and the Dean of Students should comprise a review board to deal with problems of this nature.

At a meeting last term of the Faculty-Student Life Committee and the editors of publications it was tentatively decided that any infractions by student editors should be brought before the publications board and their advisors. This motion was subject to approval by the faculty.

At that meeting it was also agreed that the college printer would no longer decide on what was and what was not tasteful.

Commenting about the censorship issue Dean Hoogesteger said that such matters always present very difficult problems. He said that no matter how one decides what is acceptable for publication always involves an arbitrary decision.

He stated, however, that because publications are supported by college funds that the publications cannot be entirely autonomous.

Hoogesteger also mentioned that there are often requests for the literary magazine from individuals outside the campus and that the college must consider the moral astes of the community.

Tusitala editor, Pat Cleckner stated, "The action taken against the drawing and not the drawing itself, is obscene."

A new drawing by Haakon Chevalier has been substituted for the Winter Tusitala.

Sorority Expires: Gamma Sisters Decline Comment

Word went around in the early part of the week that the Gamma Phi Theta, one of the two remaining sororities on campus went out of existence. The Stentor sent out a reporter to investigate, who encountered two officials of the organization. The girls confirmed the rumor, yet when asked for the reason for their closedown, they replied, "The matter is our own private business," and "It just hurt's too much to talk about."

Ed. Note: this is reprinted from "North Shore Life" and the "Waukegan News Sun."

A report that at least 15 persons at Lake Forest College have been implicated in the use of illegal drugs has turned out to be false.

The charges arose from a letter written by a coed to an acquaintance in the East.

"Apparently she wanted to spice things up," said Police Chief Charles Gilbert. "So she wrote certain things, using first names about certain persons at the college and the use of drugs."

Gilbert said the friend to whom the letter was written contacted college officials.

Gilbert said his department then investigated the charges, questioning all involved. "There was absolutely no basis to the charges in the letter," he said. "It was a complete fabrication."

"Apparently the girl just wanted to spice things up in her letter and it backfired." Gilbert added.

Loses A Game But Gains A Hero

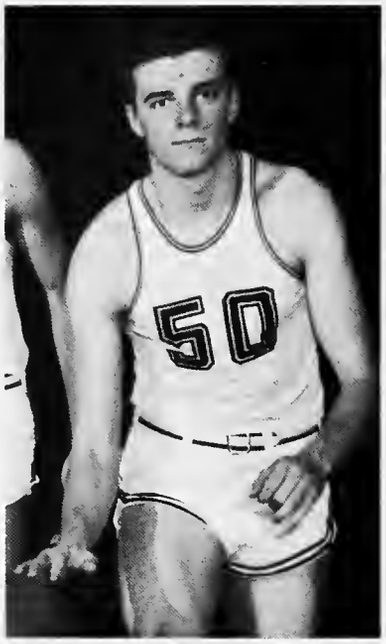
LFC Honors Fred Broda

by Mike Maiman

Last Monday the Foresters closed out their campaign with a loss to a rugged North Park team. The game was fairly close throughout and was never out of reach until the closing minutes. What made the night was the 25 point performance by Capt. Fred Broda who now holds the Lake Forest All-Time scoring record with 1825 points. Broda smashed the old record held by Tom Lewis (61) much to the pleasure of a loud partisan Forester crowd. The tremendous turnout was in response to Fred Broda Night which consisted of a post game ceremony in which a truly outstanding person was honored. Coach Triptow took the role of MC and introduced many of the old alums, one of which was Lewis himself. A basketball signed by the players was presented to Fred, followed by an appreciation plaque from the fans, and a trophy for his accomplishments. The night went off as planned except for one minor detail; the guest speaker, Willie Davis of the Packers, was late because of a late class at U. of Chicago. Davis arrived as the players were dressing and the activity started. Fred's eyes lit up like a light when he was introduced to Willie and proceded to tell Willie how he had lost $30 on the Green Bay Pitt game. Numerous pictures were taken and then the party moved over to Gregory Lounge where Davis entertained the crowd for an hour with his stories. Before Willie left Fred ushered him into his room to show his Packer enthusiasm in the way of photos on the walls. The physical plant men are instructed to disregard that last sentence. Fred was last seen floating somewhere on Cloud Nine.

End of Era

The North Park game marked the end of an era. That was the last game to be played in our field house. This writer recalls the time many years ago when he sat in the stands and watched the Harlem Globetrotters perform on that same court. But the field house is being turned into a much needed indoor hockey rink and the new Sports Center will shelter the '68 Foresters.



Broda: A Star Is Born

It is now proper to look back at the '68 Foresters and reflect on their season. With the return of only four lettermen, Broda, Hogan Antherton and Maiman the Foresters were lacking the experience needed to cope with many of their opponents. Height was also a major factor. 6-3 Broda had to cope with many men 4 or 5 inches taller than himself. This was also true of the other members of the team as well. The Foresters ended the season with a record of 8-14, an improvement over last year, and with a few breaks could possibly have won a few more. But that is the past now and we must look to the future. Next year 7 lettermen will be returning and with the addition of tall freshmen, the season could conceivably improve on this year. Only time and the Director of Admissions can tell.

• Sorority

The girls were eager to know whether the Stentor was going to print another "vindicative attack" revolving around this issue. They agreed to write a well thought-out statement, but as of now, their reaction is "No comment." We can only wait to be enlightened as to why the Chi 'O's is now the only functioning sorority group on campus.

Support McCarthy

Senator Eugene McCarthy is making his final push in the Indiana primary this weekend. As in Wisconsin and New Hampshire, his campaign planners have organized a blitz of canvassing and publicity in the two weeks before the election.

You can help. Busses are leaving from behind Commons at 6:00 tonight and returning from Indianapolis Sunday evening. If you have not already signed up, there may still be room on the busses, or you may contact Mrs. Carol Moodie.

Knights Of Soccer Triumphant In Week's Exciting Contest

There had been no wars for a week and the natives were making restless noises. So the heads of state, interpreting this as battle thirst rekindled an old conflict with the exclusive Knights of the Calvinists castle from Grand Rapids land. The original dispute was a very vague issue and the reheated version was even more nebulous. However, everyone seemed excited and occupied with the prospect of engagement.

The ladies of the court were gathering in the gallery, the Knights were sharpening their swords on the other side of the battlefield and the Feudalists, suzerians of Lake Forest, in the portal were talking about last night's ball and/or brawl.

Battle Commences

With full fanfare, the courtier announced the commencement of the first scrimmage period. Summoned, the Feudalists, bedecked in their white regalia symbolizing virility or sterility, depending on which side you stand, crossed the drawbridge. There they met the gilded yellow armour of the Knights, fighting for the forces of tooth decay or sun spray, again depending on your loyalties.

The ground warfare was rough though sporadic and the presiding arbitrator seemed to be paying more attention to the silent warfare in the gallery. The break for tea came with no decisive action for either side, although there were some significant blows struck by Corp. Tomayo of the Feudalists.

The resumption of the battle marked an intensification. The gate guard, Sgt. Murray, might well have been equipped with a submachine gun, so skillfully did he turn back the enemy's rushes. He didn't even falter after withstanding an evil plot of the Knights to disable the gate guard.

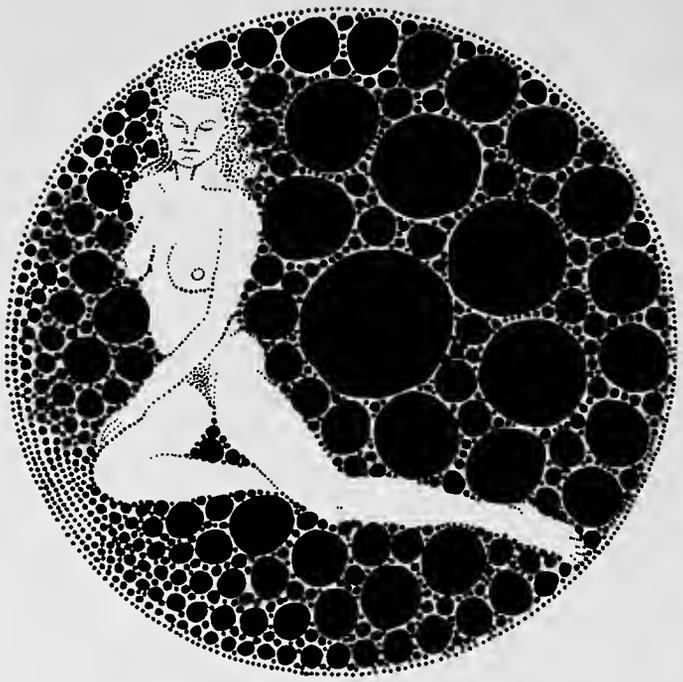
Knights Strike First

Unfortunately, of all the twenty-seven saves, the only one that counts is the one he missed. Capt. Cook of the Yellow Squad scored entry after a heroic attempted rescue by Sgt. Murray. This happened in the second scrimmage period.

Flustered, the Feudalists acted, as one astute gallery observer noted, like a bunch of preppies who give up if they don't score first. Fortunately the Highway Men, mustered by enlivened patriotism, the once snow whites, now mud and sweat whites, broke the yellow line in a rush led by 2nd Lt. Porto and assisted by Corp. Rankin. It was only then that the commanding general of the Knights went; everyone else knew.

Decisive Blow Dealt

To avoid the enigma of a draw, the arbitrators went into emergency rules, whereby the first fatality wins the war. United now under the Red and White flag, Lt. Lee and his regiment scored the victory point. The gallery went wild and there were even reports that a couple of court ladies fainted. Everyone agreed that it was a fantastic fight despite the heavy casualties.



This is for you, it is my full heart
It is the book I meant to read you when we were old.
Now I am a shadow
I am as restless as an empire
You are the one who released me.
I saw you watching the moon
You did not hesitate to love me with it
I saw you honoring the wildflowers caught in the rocks
You loved me with them
At night I saw you dance alone on the wet pebbles of the shoreline and you welcomed me in the circle more than a guest.
All this happened in the truth of time, in the truth of flesh.
I saw you with a child
you brought me to his perfume and his visions without demand of blood
On so many wooden tables adorned with food and candles, a thousand sacraments which you carried in your basket.
I visited my clay
I visited my birth
and you guarded my back
as I became small and frightened enough to be born again.
I wanted you for your beauty and you gave me more than yourself
You shared your beauty
this I learned only tonight
as I recall the mirrors you walked away from after you had given them whatever they claimed for my initiation.
Now I am a shadow
I long for the boundaries of my wandering
And I move with the energy of your prayer and I move in the direction of your prayer for you are kneeling like a bouquet in a cave of bone behind my forehead and I move toward a love you have dreamed for me.

The Poem That Needs No Title

I

If ever a time the then is now
Possibly making the universe equate to what it should had been for they hauled me in
for the original sin
of being December.

II

Stenciled dragon's wings furious in my lungs Busy being something stolen from an ancient yellow
Emporer complete with handkerchiefs as contrived as urns
as Renaissance Cathedrals spun from a fleet of silk worms
as meticulous as a Nun's signature.
The insect veil deceiving in its weaving
conjuring another curtain in the Inner Show (Rococo is the Internal Facade) or making no more marrow for china puppies to teethe with a porcelain yelp.

XIII

Finally getting shoe laces back and
Waiving Extradition,
Granted from a court that looks as if it moonlights as a bank at night.
Pretending to be as Happy
as Breast Sapping
May Wine,
Knowing better for this really isn't over.
Having been the product of collective embraces arms that fleshly sobbed tingled as a shrine ushering its incense to the air
or groaned as a bear attacking a pillar of Honey,
As if Mike Nichols was directing the closing scene in
"SPIRIT OF ST. LOUIS" and now being as Happy as
Breast Sapping
May Wine.
truing to see a reason
for I needed a reason,

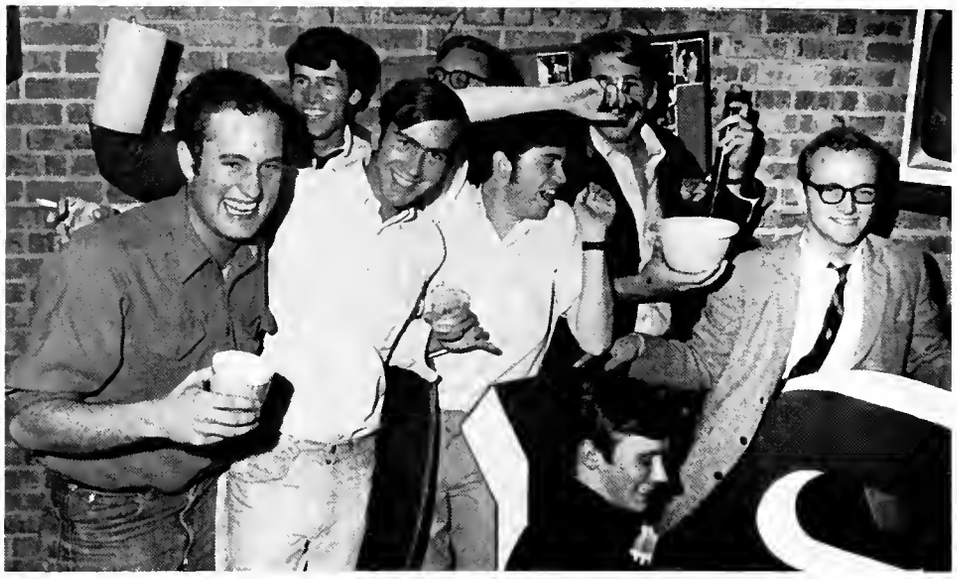
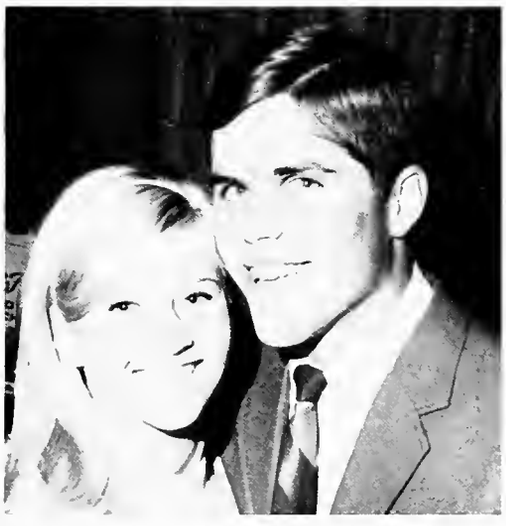
THE BROTHERS . . .

. . . all the beautiful people.





How does it feel to be one of
the beautiful people?
Now that you know what you are
What do you want to be?
And have you traveled very far?
Far as the eye can see.
How does it feel to be one of
the beautiful people?
How often have you been there?
What did you do when you were there?
Nothing that doesn't show.

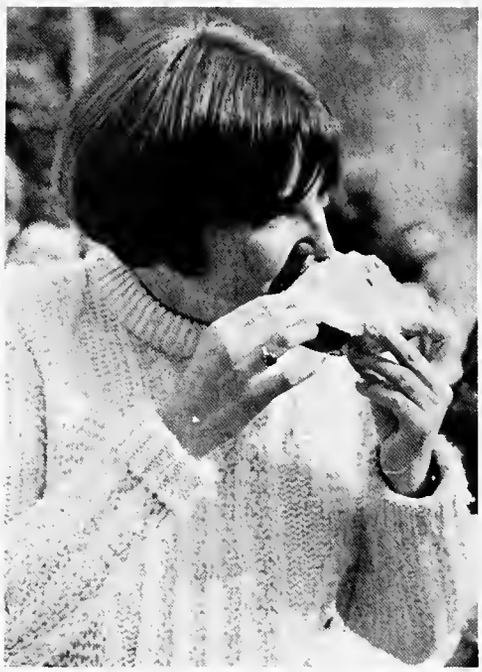
SPRING



The purpose of the 1968 Seventh Annual Conference on Foreign Affairs was self-evident: to paint a clearer picture of "Spain in the Modern World" for those whose ideas of Her were vague. Through the major address of the Consul General of Spain in Chicago, the lectures on: "Spain and Gibraltar" by the Minister Counselor of the Spanish Embassy, "Economic Relations between Spain and the United States" by the Commercial Attaché of Spain in Chicago, and the "Economic Development in Spain from 1939" by the Permanent Representative from Spain to the Organization of American States, Lake Forest College became aware of Spain's national and international role in the twentieth century.

More important is Spain's future after Generalisimo Francisco Franco Bahamonde, Regent and Chief of State. Since the United States has poured many millions of dollars into Her economy, it is the hope of the Conference Committees that Lake Forest College better understand Her present economic and political situation and Her future.

A "Catholic, social and representative State, in agreement with its tradition, (Spain) is declared constituted (once again) into a Kingdom." (Law of Sucession, ratified by the Referenda of 6 July 1947 and 14 December 1966).

We trust that after a carefully planned Conference on Spain, the College is prepared to sit back, to watch from a distance, and to understand the eventual changes in Spain as they occur.

GENERATION GAP

Tonight, we urge you to join with us in the mourning of those killed in Viet Nam and in the black ghettos of the United States. We hope that this convocation, in its exploration of the generation gap, will strive to recognize the immediacy of the problems now confronting us and deal with these issues.

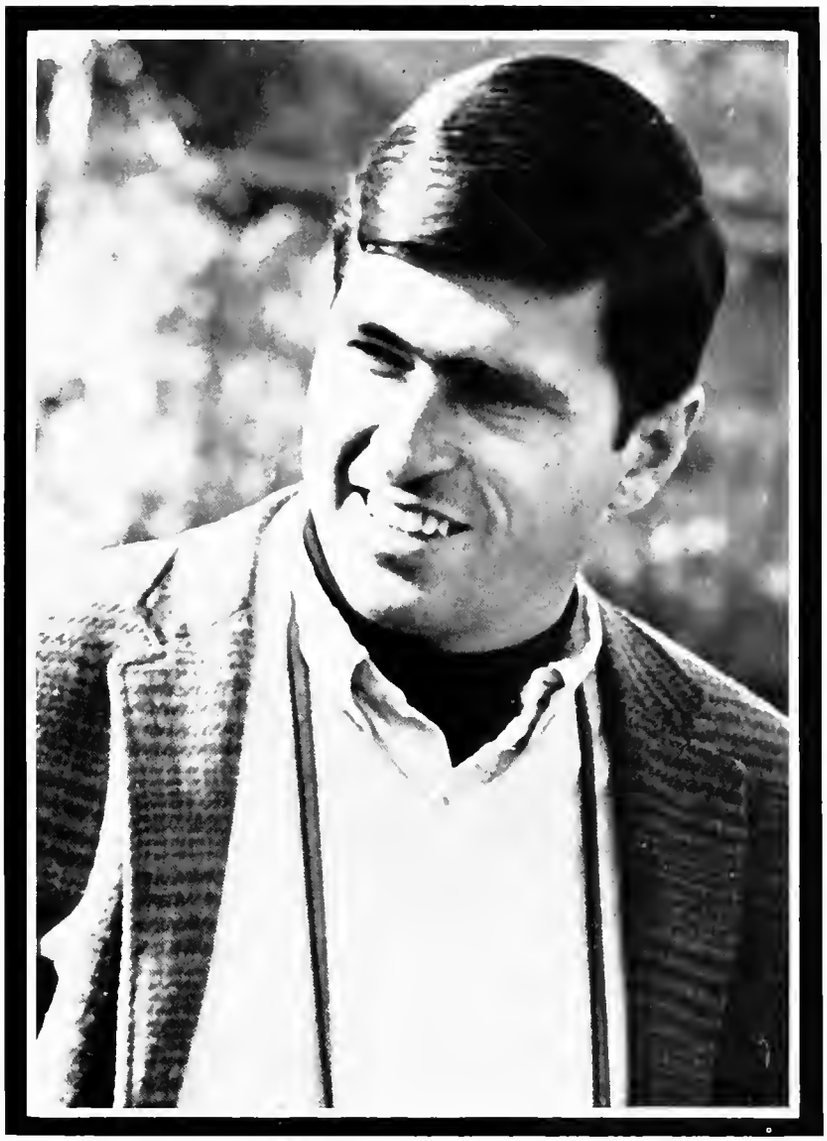
IN MEMORIAM



JACOB WARDWELL EDWARDS

1938 — 1967

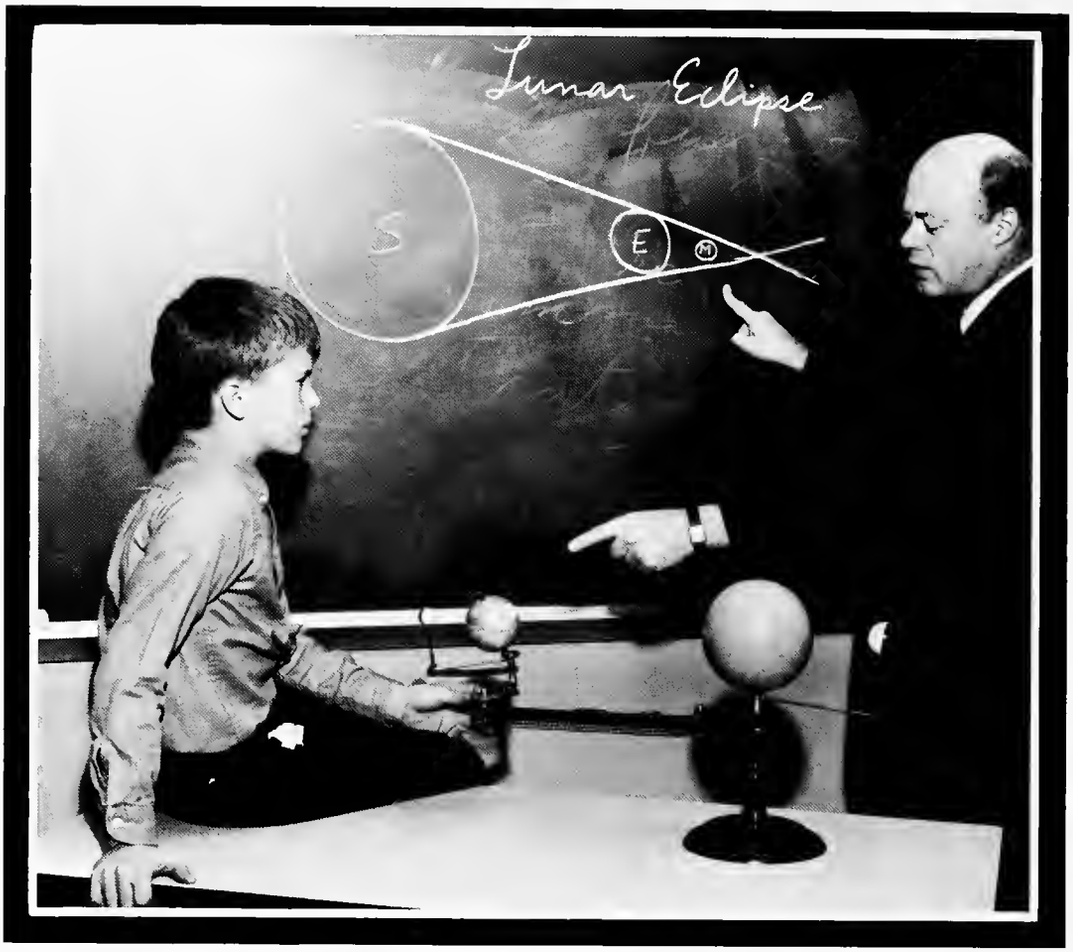
Jake Edwards sitting in his office in Patterson Lodge may have had the official title of Director of Admissions, but so much more transpired in his office, so much more interested him regarding his students, that the three word title is insufficient. What Jake did in fourteen months here at Lake Forest cannot be measured in terms of the number of students he admitted nor the quality of this year's freshman class, but rather by a barometer, if we had one sensitive enough, to measure pressure of sentiment.

We simply cannot forget the fact that Jake ate lunch with us repeatedly in Commons. Chatting with members from every segment of the campus, Jake listened to our conversations from biology to parietals with an open ear. As a very young person Jake could talk to us on our own level. There was never any barrier or block to that special communication because we knew he trusted us as we also trusted him.

Nor can we forget how Jake transformed the role of the Admissions Office. Previously many students who had an interview there never returned. But because of the atmosphere which Jake created, students did return to Patterson Lodge for counseling, moral support, or just talk. In his official capacity Jake tried to make his freshman class as "diverse" as possible; and although ribbed for this by students, he did indeed live up to such an ideal. He traveled to ghetto schools in the big cities and to depressed areas in the South to attract able students to Lake Forest. Besides this, he established the Student Honorary Society, a group of students who became responsible for leading tours around campus and conducting New Student Week.

We will not only remember Jacob Edwards for the tangibles he has left us. What we will also remember was his vibrant personality, his handsome smile, and fresh honesty.

IN MEMORIAM



LINDLEY BURTON

Perhaps the best word to describe Lin would be "maddening." He himself would not have misinterpreted this; he would have been amused and, I believe, rather pleased. Because what made him maddening was his total obliviousness to the shortcomings of us all. The rest of us found it necessary, in our battles against war, racism, and other barbarous insanities, to cultivate what we felt was a wholesome hatred of the human deviltry that produced these evils. We would mumble something about hating the sin but loving the sinner, but what we said wasn't what we felt.

Lin was like a small child in not having the remotest sense of the hatefulness of human deviltry that made our hearts tremble and never boiled; it was maddening. When you know you are good and your enemy is evil, it is maddening to have your comrade love the enemy. Christianity has its time and place — one hour a week, in a church. It is only hopelessly impractical people like Lin who dream of its upsetting our entire routine.

And that brings me to the most maddening thing of all about Lin; he was as upsetting as a bluebird coming between a sniper and his target. At first it gave us a warm glow to have him think so well of us. We were honest, we were brave, we were diligent in good works. Unfortunately, his unquestioning belief in us had the curious effect of creating an uneasy doubt in our own minds. In the end, the more oblivious he was to our shortcomings, the more painfully conscious of them we ourselves became. It was maddening.

'The Need of All Humanity'

The assassin's bullet that extinguished the life of Dr. King has struck deep into the fabric of this country and has torn into the fiber of every American of every race, color and creed. Each one of us has died a little with the death of Martin Luther King, who recently wrote:

"Nonviolence, the answer to the Negro's need, may become the answer to the most desperate need of all humanity."

Dr. King's murder is a national disaster, depriving Negroes and whites alike of a leader of integrity, vision and restraint. The calamity of his loss will require a maximum of self-control and steadiness of nerve on the part of all the American people.

But the cause for which he died will find renewed strength and purpose in the inspiration of his memory, and it will surely triumph, for the cause is just.

THE DOVE THAT FLUNKED HIS LOYALTY OATH

The Democratic National Committee arranged this week to challenge any wayward Democratic doves who refuse to support President Johnson in next year's nominating convention and election, and this has naturally raised questions here about how the challenge would be made.

Q. Do you or do you not support Lyndon Baines Johnson for re-election to the Presidency of the United States?
A. Which Johnson?

Q. Please be serious. Have you now or have you ever had any mental reservations about the wisdom, compassion or success of President Johnson's policy in Vietnam?
A. One night when our casualties passed the 100,000 mark, the war budget went up to $30 billion, and all our old allies left us, and the race riots got out of hand, I must admit I had a momentary twinge of doubt.

Q. How did this doubt express itself?
A. I smiled at Senator Robert Kennedy of New York the next day in the Senate cafeteria.

Q. And what did he do?
A. I was on his blind side — the one with the hair — and he didn't see me.

Q. Nevertheless, you feel that you have been faithful to President Johnson's Vietnam policy from the start?
A. Especially from the start.

Q. What do you mean by that?
A. At the start I was not only faithful but enthusiastic about the President's Vietnam policy. He was against a wider war in 1964; so was I. He was against bombing North Vietnam and fighting a land war on the continent of Asia; so was I.

Q. What did you think about bombing Hanoi to the conference table?
A. I thought it was a lovely theory .

Q. Yes?
A. murdered by a gang of brutal facts.

Q. When the President said that bombing would reduce the flow of the enemy's men and supplies from the North, what was your reaction?
A. I was very sympathetic to that thought.

Q. You shared his objective?
A. Absolutely, but when the enemy's men increased in the next two years from 400 in the South to over 50,000, and they began to use big guns and rockets in the South against our men, it occurred to me that something might be wrong.

Q. Of course, the President believed that escalating the war would strengthen the morale of the South Vietnamese and reduce our casualties. Did this not impress you?
A. It certainly did. I don't think anything has depressed me more than the morale of the South Vietnamese and the rise in our own casualties.

Q. I'm afraid you misunderstood me. Surely you want the President to keep his commitments?
A. Absolutely. His commitments to the American people to avoid a land war in Asia and fight a war against poverty in the American cities were wonderful. Whatever happened to them, by the way?

Q. I am asking the questions here. Have you ever been a member of any organization, association or conspiracy dedicated to the overthrow of the Administration of Lyndon Baines Johnson?
A. I once went to Harvard.

Q. Anything else?
A. I belong to the Presbyterian Church and the United Nations Association.

Q. Do you associate regularly with people who criticize President Johnson's conduct of the Vietnam war?
A. It's impossible to avoid them. I see quite a lot of our beloved majority leader, Senator Mansfield; also Senators Fulbright, Kennedy, McCarthy, Symington, Morton, Case, Javits, Aiken, Cooper, and of course some members of the Cabinet and people like Galbraith and Schlesinger, and

Q. Stop! That's enough. Do you read any papers or magazines that support the President on Vietnam?
A. That's a hard one. Let me think. Well, I've turned quite a few corners in Vietnam with Joe Alsop. Also I always read Time and Life, but they've switched now.

Q. Do you read the President's speeches?
A. Every one. I'm making a little red book of his sayings for the campaign. They run all the way from Isaiah and the glories of reasoning together to General Westmoreland and the kill-ratio; from calculated pacification to accidental extermination; from

Q. Never mind. I think this is enough. I'm afraid I'll have to challenge you on this record. It leaves me with a reasonable doubt that you would put party above peace and that you might even dump the President. Do you have anything to say?
A. Well, frankly, I think this is unprecedented and preposterous. Nobody's ever thought of unifying the Democratic party before. And besides, I didn't switch; Johnson switched. I didn't dump him; he dumped me.

SUICIDAL ESCALATION

General Westmoreland has reportedly requested more than 200,000 additional American troops — a 40 per cent increase — in order "to regain the initiative" in Vietnam. Old soldiers' illusions, it appears, never die.

If events of the past six weeks in Vietnam prove anything, they demonstrate beyond resonable doubt that the policy of military escalation in Southeast Asia which President Johnson and his Pentagon advisers have followed for more than three years is futile — and worse. Time and again, General Westmoreland and the Joint Chiefs of Staff have asked for and received additional men and resources, each time with the promise that there was "light at the end of the tunnel."

Time and again they have been proved wrong. The tunnel has turned out to be a bottomless pit, going down toward nowhere. Every time the United States has sent more men and arms to Vietnam, American escalation has been matched by more men, more arms and more determination on the other side. Instead of victory, each escalation has produced a new stand-off at a higher level of death, destruction and despair for the Vietnamese and at mounting costs in lives, money and respect for the United States. Meanwhile, increased military activity in Vietnam has tended to undermine Washington's side of the vital political struggle, which is the heart of the problem there; it has weakened the United States both domestically and in its foreign relations. Each escalation has raised the risk of a suicidal international conflagration.

The enemy in Vietnam still has substantial uncommitted reserves, plus the possibility for additional arms and manpower from deeply committed Communist allies. There is every reason to fear that a further escalation of the kind General Westmoreland has proposed will create new problems of unprecedented proportions for the United States both at home and abroad. The effect will be to push off negotiations, not advance them.

The time has come to abandon this bankrupt policy. The American people have been pushed beyond the limits of gullibility. Searching questions about the escalation doctrine are at last being raised by significant numbers of private citizens, members of Congress and even by officials of standing in the Administration itself. These questions must now be pressed at every level. The fate of the nation depends upon it.

He had his dream and all through life,
Worked up to it through toil and strife
Afloat fore'er before his eyes,
It colored for him all the skies:
  The storm-cloud dark
  Above his bark,
The calm and listless vault of blue
Took on his hopeful hue,
It tinctured every passing beam —
  He had his dream.

He labored hard and failed at last
His sails too weak to bear the blast,
The raging tempests tore away.
  But what cared he
  For wind and sea
He said, "The tempest will be short,
My bark will come to port."
He saw through every cloud a gleam —
  He had his dream.

'AMERICA, COME HOME'

At certain moments in history, a man becomes larger than himself because he is the spokesman and the symbol of a cause. He is transfigured by events, and history in a sense speaks through him. These years of the Negro revolution have been such a time and Martin Luther King was such a man.

He had his small human frailities for he was a man among men but he also had a great vision. He dreamed of an America where all men are brothers and a man's race is a small fact, not a large obsession. He dreamed of a world where armed violence would be as rare and seem as strange as human cannibalism and where no member of the family of man would be without dignity and freedom.

Martin Luther King lived for that vision. He walked for it in the streets of Montgomery and Chicago. He marched for it on the road from Selma. He preached for it from a thousand pulpits and from the steps of the Lincoln Memorial. He suffered for it in the Birmingham jail. He died for that vision in Memphis.

He was not a prophet unrecognized in his own time. America and the world bore testament to the nobility and truth of his vision. Dr. King stood beside President Johnson when the latter signed into law the historic Civil Rights Act of 1965. King Olav V of Norway presented to him the Nobel Prize for peace. He received many a key to the city, scroll of commendation, honorary degree.

But these personal honors were not the fulfillment which he sought. Dr. King's aim was no less than to lift from the lives of millions of his fellow Negro Americans the bitter heritage of two and one-half centuries of slavery and another century of degradation and second-class citizenship.

The court decisions and civil rights laws of recent years have gone far toward abolishing the old props to a segregated, inferior status for Negroes; but the pending civil rights bill with its vitally important anti-violence and open housing provisions has not yet been enacted. There could be no finer gesture to Dr. King's memory than for the House of Representatives to take up the bill and adopt it forthwith.

With the necessary structure of law, however, the urgent need is to make this new equality a genuine reality. This means an enormous public and private investment of money, ideas, and energy to insure equality of schooling, of job opportunities, of housing. An endless number of experts has spelled out the specific needs; the report of the President's Commission on Civil Disorders restated the imperative necessity for prompt action. Yet Congress and the nation have not acted.

Americans by themselves cannot achieve the peaceful world of which Dr. King dreamed and preached. But it is well within their wealth and power to translate his vision into reality in these United States. They need have only the generosity of spirit and the moral imagination to affirm their common humanity across the useless barriers of race.

"America, you've strayed away," Dr. King once cried. "You've trampled over nineteen million of your brethren. All men are created equal. Not some men. Not white men. All men. America, rise up and come home."

Only when America "comes home" to make the promise of the Declaration of Independence the truth for every Negro citizen will the world know that Martin Luther King did not live and die in vain.

"Time it was,

And what a time it was,

It was . . .

A time of innocence,

A time of confidences.

Long ago . . . it must be .

I have a photograph.

Preserve your memories;

They're all that's left you."
